THE INCREDIBLES

Today If India is bursting with commercial energy while other world economies are flat lining, somewhere we have our Small Businesses to thank. These Small Businesses' have either hit on innovative ideas or tapped into economic trends that continue to fuel their growth. What they all have in common is that, they've learned to exploit their special strengths to persevere against competition, environmental challenges and lack of resources which may be a given in western world and yet there's not a hint of mediocrity among them.

The Top 100 Small Businesses for the year 2011 have been drawn from across a wide breadth of industries including retail, education, communications, healthcare, manufacturing, technology, financial services, and others. These Businesses' which include both private and publicly held enterprise reflect the geographic, ethnic and gender mix of India. Women owned small businesses too are increasingly making their mark in the enterprise culture, even in such industries which are otherwise regarded as traditional male preserves. These Small businesses are, in effect, improving productivity and their positioning comes from a valuation of companies based on earnings growth, sales growth and return on equity in the past 12 months. Amongst those featured in Top 100 Some are household names, But many have toiled in obscurity for years -- tweaking their business models multiple times before finally hitting on winning formulas.

To Salute this growing segment, we have dedicated and built our inaugural issue, by profiling the leading entrepreneurs in small businesses which are presently below 100 crore, however the businesses have the calibre to reach ten times the money they are making presently, with their junoon, jugaad and luck.

We would be happy to hear from you on this maiden effort of ours. Send in your feedback to editorial@entrepreneurindia.org
